We have been able to glean but very little information from the Richmond papers in regard to the recent meeting in that city between certain representatives of the Virginia bondholders and the authorities of the Commonwealth in reference to an adjustment of the debt. Notwithstanding the veil of secrecy was nominally lifted at the close of the confer. ence, no new information of importance was vouchsafed to the public. We presume as a matter of fact that there is really very little that is new to be disclosed in regard to the status of the debt. All the world knows about how it stands. It has been extensively discussed in official and unofficial papers and reports since the close of the war. The debt is large-close upon fifty millions—and Virginia has assumed to herself two-thirds of it as it stood some four years ago, and turned over the other one-third to this State. In other words, she considers herself as only morally bound to pay about thirty millions of dollars. In connection with this recent meeting at Richmond there has been some vague talk in the newspapers about efforts that are being made to take up the outstanding obligations of Virginia and to issue in lieu thereof bonds bearing a lower rate of interest. The Richmond Dispatch says that a gentleman lately visited that city who represents the "American Bond-funding and Banking Association of London," and that he submitted to Governor KEMPER a proposal to take up the whole funded debt of Virginia (amounting to some thirty millions of dollars), and to accept bonds for the same to run twenty years, and bear interest at the rate of four per cent per annum. No details of the proposed plan of exchange are given, although everybody who owns a Virginia bond would be glad to know what they are expected to do in order to get their money. They all know that the proper way to manage the business would be this: Let Mr. MACKINNON raise thirty millions of dollars, or whatever other sum may be necessary, and deposit the same in the Virginia State Treasury, or with such agents In Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Richmond as Governor KEM-PER may designate; then let the Governor give notice to all persons who hold any portion of the funded debt to send their bonds to the Treasurer of Virginia, or to the agent most convenient, as well as per cent bonds representing an equal amount should be issued to Mr. MACKINnon-all bearing date from the day of the deposit of the thirty millions of dollars, so that he might lose nothing by putting up the money in advance. Now, it may seem strange to some persons that European capitalists should be willing to invest so large a sum in four were not anxious to take up the last United States loan, and several financial agents had to be sent abroad to negotiate the same. Surely a United States bond ought to be as desirable an investment in a statement made by the Dispatch to the effect that this corporation ne fif. be the fact, these securities have probably been purchased for about filty cents on the dollar, and the owners are now endeavoring to get their par value by loaning to the State $30,000,000 at four per cent per annum. They could afford to loan money at four per cent, if by the operation they could bring the price of the bonds to something near par, and finally first the whole amount on the market The affair has about it, however, several features that suggest caution, and until it is more fully explained and the ability of the parties to the proposition to carry it out better substantiated, it is not probable that there will be any permanent rise in the value of Virginia securities.

Letter from a Dissatisfied Lady. We have a long letter from a lady a Moundsville (a widow lady we presume) in regard to the way matters and things of a public improvement character are projected and carried out down there. She complains bitterly of the new Rolling Mill-of the way it was got up-of the tax that was voted upon her property and the property of other people, as a bonus in order to start it-and of the fac that property instead of becoming more valuable in consequence of the Mill. actually rents for less than it did before Whether she means that this is generally the case or not we can hardly make out f rom her letter, but she tells us that she knows of one lady "who had two houses when the Penitentiary was commenced one of which rented for one hundred and fifty dollars. Since the Mill started the largest one has not rented until the last three months of last year, and then only for five dollars per month, and this year it only brings four dollars per month. This is what the new rolling mill has done for us." This sort of shrinkage in the rentable value of property she considers a fraud upon widows and orphans, especially in view of the fact that "there is a stockholder in the mill who rents one of his houses for more than the two owned by this lady," notwithstanding "his mill tax (for the bonus alluded to) down.

s only six dollars this year, while hers is ten dollars." She desires us "to varn widow ladies from coming to Moundsville to buy themselves a home," and she goes on to relate the experience of a certain unfortunate widow "who bought a lot for fifty dollars, and another lot that had a small stable on it for four hundred dollars." It seems that this unfortunate widow "found herself taxed at thirteen hundred dollars for her vacant lot, and the same for the lot that had the stable on it," notwithstanding the fact that "not a lot in the place was selling for more than two hundred dollars." And 'as if all this was not enough in the way of robbery," this unfortunate widow was further taxed with a capitation tax when everybody knew there never had been a man about her house, or if there had been his tax had no right on her bills."

It seems that there is no hope for an redress of grievances for the unfortunate widow ladies of Moundsville, inasmuch as the letter of our fair correspondent assures us that "this over taxation was put before a Republican Board of Supervisors. when the Republicans were in power, and nothing was done. And when the Democrats came into power it was put before their board and nothing was done." supposes, therefore, "that the individual members had all they could do to pocket the dollars themselves," whatever that means. Her conclusion is that "Democrats and Republicans can clasp hands over the chasm of their pockets if nothing else." In this conclusion we are not prepared to take issue with her. We wish re knew what advice or consolation to offer to our correspondent in view of the wrongs of which she omplains, but really we are at a loss what to suggest. We think probably it so sadly damaged by it would turn in and vote it a small bonus as an inducement to leave, their property would recover its rentable value. ATTEMPTING A CORNER The Directors of the Board of Trade this morning fixed 65 cents on corn and 50 cents on oats as the prices upon which margins shall be called at this time. This was done at the Instance of certain dealers who claim that there is a combination to run the price of these grains up to fic-titious prices, or, in other words, that par-ties are endeavoring to corner the corn and oat market. HEAVY GALE ON THE LAKES. A heavy gale has prevailed here since 11 o'clock last night, and there are ap-prehensions for the safety of shipping on the lake, but up to 1 P. M. to day there have been no disasters reported.

The Excitement in New York Over New York Cor. Chicago Tribane.

All New York, or rather the stratum of society between the richer and poorer classes, to which belong our leading clergymen, laymen, and church-going people, are agitating a great question which has arisen, and which must at once be met. I refer to the opening of Sunday evening amusements, called F "Sacred Concerts," but which, held in theaters, and combining dramatic and musical performances, can not rightly be so called. That the opening of amuse crease, is evinced by the seven dramatic and operatic entertainments devout and solemn. It seems to be a wide-spread fear among our leading clergymen and church people, that New York, so proper and decorous on a week day, may get to imitate New Orleans, or even Paris and many other European cities, in her Sunday evening amusements.

Many are the letters written, many the sermons preached, by our leading clergy-men lately, on this new danger that threatens us. An English Episcopal di-vine, lately settled in Brooklyn, has writ-ten and preached in favor of these evening concerts on Sunday, as attracting the masses, and amusing them in a right and sensible manner. He argues that, if the sensible manner. He argues that, if they will not attend evening church, they can be benefitted and refreshed for the hard struggle of the coming week by attending some places of innocent amusement as a "Sacred Concert." A New York Universalist clergyman has gone even a step further, and asserted that "Once a Sunday is quite enough for any person to attend church, and that 'Sacred Concerts' are a benefit." But the mass of clergymen and church going Gothamites look with alarm at these new manifestations, and wonder where the liberty of enjoyment is to be checked. It has long been considered right to take a stroll, write a letter, read the papers or a good book, or even enjoy a drive, on the Sabbath; and even our pastor can enjoy a clear and even our pastor can enjoy a cigar and a sixta after his sermons. But people heads to shudder at the broad license and begin to shudder at the broad lice wide open doors of the so-called "Grand Sacred Entertainments," and to ask each other where the matter will end.

Common people thought that nothing in the way of a convention would be surprising after the Bill Stickers met and ATTORNEY AT LAW, fixed up their constitution. But the Coffin-Makers' Convention, it must be confessed, is even more highly original Carrying Coal Oil. From the St Louis Democrat, of Saturday.

There is a corner in cosl oil. An agent has arrived from Washington who has discovered a construction in the language of the act of Congress in relation to the transportation of coal oil on board steamboats. Hitherto steamers have been carrying it on the guards as shipped, in carrying it on the guards as shipped, in barrels bound with iron. Now, it seems, oil to be carried on steamboats must be in cans, boxed, and iron-bound, and these placed in iron-bound barrels. To avoid all unpleasantness, Mr. Scudder, President of the Anchor Line, yesterday issued orders that none of his boats should receive shipments of coal oil. Several lots hauled to the boat were peremptorily rejected. The gentleman from Washington took passage on the Grand Tower, being desirous of witnessing the manner in which coal oil is carried on the Western and Southern rivers.

Woman's Chances of Getting Mar-RIED. - England's marriage statistics have been analyzed to show the probabilitles of marriage for women at different ages. Supposing the sum of a woman's chances of marriage to be one hundred. she exhausts between the ages of 15 and 20 years fourteen and a half chances. If she lives unmarried from 20 to 25, fifty-two more of her chances have vanished into thin air. If she remains unmarried tor five more years, she will turn 30 with only fifteen and a half chances out of her bundred left. Alter 35 she has eleven and a half chances, and at this point the statistician gave up his calculation, except that he assures us that even if a worth has lived warning 40. man has lived unmarried 60 years, she still has the tenth of a chance of getting married out of the hundred with which
